The EUI at-a-glance

• Established in 1972, the European University Institute is an inter-governmental organisation for higher education and research.

• The EUI has 23 Member States, and hosts an international community of more than 1,100 academic and administrative staff.

• The EUI has a three-fold mandate:

  • (i) providing doctoral and post-doctoral researchers with advanced academic training;

  • (ii) fostering research and analysis related to the European integration process and shifts in politics in Europe and globally;

  • (iii) delivering graduate and executive education on transnational governance mainly through its School of Transnational Governance (STG).

• Located in Florence, Italy.

Supported by unparalleled knowledge assets: The Historical Archives & Library

The Historical Archives of the European Union (HAEU)

The Historical Archives of the European Union facilitate research on the history of the EU, promote public interest in European integration and enhance transparency in the functioning of EU Institutions. They house the only official archives of the EU. Their holdings include:

- Private, as well as public prominent archives deposited by key EU institutions
- Private archives of individuals, movements and international organisations who have played an extraordinary role in European integration

The HAEU also hosts the Alcide de Gasperi Centre for the Study of European integration.

The Library

The EUI Library boasts more than forty years of investment in collections, services and infrastructure, resulting in an internationally recognised social science research library, valued for its multi-national character as well as the high quality of its collections with a special emphasis on Europe and European integration.

- In addition, the Library provides access to an extensive collection of databases, full text e-journals, e-books and e-working papers
- The Library holds a coveted European Documentation Centre (EDC) status, acting as an official depository of EU publications and documents

Why a School of Transnational Governance (STG) at the European University Institute?

Founded in June 2017, the STG was created to combine the world of academia and policy-making in an effort to create leaders who are prepared to manage the complexities of a world where policy-making increasingly transcends national borders.
The School of Transnational Governance seeks to facilitate the study of key policy issues from an uncommon transnational perspective:

• Beyond-the-State as the primary unit of analysis

• To study, analyse and teach governance beyond borders addressing interactions amongst public and private governments, institutions, organisations and corporations at a local, regional, national and supra-national level.

• To review, assess and analyze selective “best practices” from the European Union experience as a reference point of study in ongoing efforts to systematically apply such integrative policies toward other world regions for the greater good.

Executive Training Seminars (ETS)

Policy Leader Fellowships

High-Level Policy Dialogues (HLPD)
The Master of Arts in Transnational Governance (MTnG)

- Pioneering curriculum designed to train private sector, government and non-profit 21st century leaders, policy makers and diplomats in how to manage the complexity of a transnational ecosystem in need of innovative solutions

- Study intends to transcend the limits, interests, and perspectives of single groups, nations, or groups of nations

- Key aim is to produce thinkers with deep expertise in the principles of democracy and the challenges posed to governance due to inevitable shifts in ‘transnational’ transformation

- Highly specific professional training offered across 7 targeted consolidation themes of transnational governance (from trade to migration, security to climate change etc).

- Dual & Joint Degrees—exchange opportunities with other established world-class schools around the globe such Fudan University, Yale University, Central European University, and Keio University

- The MTnG will combine methodological rigour with practical application techniques to include a hands-on summer internship requirement as well as elective participation in the STG executive training programs to ensure successful transnational policy implementation skills development.

Accepting applications on a rolling basis beginning Fall, 2019 for first class intake in September, 2020
